

Sample Letter 1:

In Everyman Newspaper's Sunday edition, the article "Abortion Rights Supporters Say 'Hyde Must Go'" heavily relies on representatives from organizations that support abortion on demand and who want to see the elimination of the Hyde Amendment.

What abortion supporters fail to recognize is that most Americans feel that their tax dollars should not be used to take the life of an unborn child. People should not be forced to pay for something they find morally wrong, and those voices should have been included in this article.

I would hope in the future that Everyman Newspaper would also approach those who oppose having their tax dollars used to pay for the destruction of precious human lives. It should be the goal of every reporter to be balanced in their approach to such a vitally important issue as the protection of human life.

Sample Letter 2: [This could be used for members of Congress as well as Senators.]

Congressman John Doe ["Congressman Doe Says, 'Hyde Must Go,'" Sunday, July 25, 2021] is determined to see our tax dollars used to pay for abortion on demand. Working in concert with pro-abortion leadership in the House and with groups like NARAL, a pro-abortion lobby group, Congressman Doe thinks our tax money should be used to pay for the deaths of unborn babies.

Congressman Doe is wrong when he says that this is what his constituents want. Most Americans oppose tax dollars being used to pay for abortions, including those in his district. Congressman Doe says he wants to help those less fortunate in our society but paying for abortion on demand with our tax dollars isn't the answer.

Congressman Doe would better serve the less fortunate in our society by helping to find real answers to real problems. Killing unborn babies with our tax money isn't the solution.

Sample Letter #3

For 45 years, the Hyde Amendment has enjoyed bipartisan support in the House and the Senate as well as the support of presidents on both sides of the aisle. It was one of the few things agreed upon by members of both parties and with good reason: when the Hyde Amendment was first introduced, the federal Medicaid program was paying for over 300,000 abortions each year and the number was rising rapidly.

In Sunday's article, "Abortion Rights Supporters Say, 'Hyde Must Go,'" the reporter failed to note that the history of Hyde includes almost a half a century of broad bipartisan support.

Why has that support suddenly disappeared? Because the Democratic Party is no longer the "Party of the People"—it is the party of abortion on demand. It is the party that bows to the ever-increasing desire of the abortion industry to see that abortions—anywhere, at any time in pregnancy and for any reason—are paid for with our tax dollars.

Even President Biden, who used to support the Hyde Amendment while a senator and vice-president, has flipped-flopped on the Hyde Amendment and now wants our tax dollars to be used to pay for abortions.

Most Americans oppose tax dollars being used to pay for abortions. It's time Democrats in Congress—and in the White House—listen to the people they claim to represent and save the Hyde Amendment.
